

EXTRA.
YALE - 6
HARVARD 0

Splendid Football Contest
Between the Great Varsity Elevens.

NO SCORE IN FIRST HALF.

New Tricks Daze the Men from New Haven at the Start of the Game.

THREE GOVERNORS LOOK ON.

An Ideal Day and a Tremendous Crowd of People at Hampden Park.

The first half in the Yale-Harvard football game at Hampden Park, Springfield, ended at 3:15 today with out a score for either side.

The second half and the game resulted as follows:
YALE..... 6
HARVARD..... 0

HAMPDEN PARK, SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 25.—It was a model football day which witnessed the great annual meeting at these grounds to-day of the Yale and Harvard Varsity elevens. Clear and frosty in the morning, the weather moderated as the time for the game came on, so that while still bracing for the players, it was yet not too chilly for the spectators.

At noon, two hours before the big battle, the crowds began to stretch out along Main street in the direction of Hampden Park. The gates were thrown open at 12 o'clock, and the throng about the entrance was up in

CAPT. WATERS OF HARVARD.
The hundreds. It consisted, for the better part, of those who, not being provided with reserved seats, were anxious to get the best ground from which to view the game.

THE GROUNDS FINE.
Hampden Park, which was the scene of many a fierce contest on the grid-iron arena since 1853, never was in better condition for a game. The ground is as level as a table and covered with short, thick turf, which greatly diminished the chances of accidents from hoofs.

The police force on hand was larger than ever before. There were one hundred from the Boston force here under an inspector, besides thirty-five of the Springfield police and more than half a hundred specials.

SPECIAL TRAINLOADS ARRIVE.
A number of the special trains from New York and Boston began arriving at the grounds about 1 o'clock. The benches on the Harvard side began to fill up first, for the friends of the crimson had reached town on earlier trains.

Among some of the more prominent Harvard men noticed were Evert J. Wendell, Lawrence Goodrich, Henry S. Van Duzer, Jack Highlands, R. F. Thayer, John Cranston, S. V. Crosby, "Stump" Willard, R. M. Appleton, J. S. Clark, M. S. Donahue, George Stewart, "Albie" Porter, Harry Keays, Everett Lake, Billy Brooks, Perry and Bernard Bradford, Edward King, George Hadden, Charles C. Beaumont, James C. Carter, Frank Beaumont, John Lee, F. J. Weld, George H. Adams, Joseph Sears and James E. Carpenter.

They came straggling in at intervals, and whenever a well-known face appeared the crowd on the crimson benches at the familiar Harvard yell of "rah! Rah! Rah!" and cordially welcomed the newcomers.

The Yale side of the field was also well filled an hour before the game began.

SOME NEW YORKERS PRESENT.
Capt. Harry Duval, ex-Chancellor of the private secretary, was one of the first to arrive with a party of friends, who had come up from New York in the special car. A delegation of the strong from the New York Athletic Club were the Yale colors, and were headed by ex-Capt. Giannini, Bartow S. Weeks and Capt. Charles Sherrill, the ex-Yale sprinter. Among the football celebrities were Laurie Elton, Vance McCormick, "Mac" Cullen, Charlie Gill, ex-Capt. Eugene Richards, Willie Terry, H. H. Knapp, C. B. Storrs and Harry Beecher. The solid men of Yale from Gotham mainly were represented by ex-Yale players, such as Henry E. Howland, George Adse, whose son plays quarterback for Yale today; S. R. Betts, Thomas Thatcher, E. A. Peabody, F. S. Winston, Buchanan Winthrop, Allan W. Everts, Gen. Henry E. Stoughton, Nathan Flatner of Brooklyn, John W. Curtis, John J. Phelps and a host of others no less prominent.

YALE'S ELEVEN LINED UP.

CAPT. HINKLEY, OF YALE.
The Orange Athletic Club and the Crescents of Brooklyn, as well as the Excelsior Club of New York, sent large delegations, which were evidently instructed to whomp it up for Yale.

AMONG COLLEGE SPECTATORS.
Among the representatives of the colleges it was noticed almost at the Princeton team was on hand, Trenchard Taylor, Wheeler and Moore being especially conspicuous. They were there to see that no new dodge of Yale's which might work against them in the Yankee giving Day game should escape their notice.

"PENNY" WAS ALSO ON HAND with Mackay, Knipe, Vail and others to keep tabs on Harvard's play, and to observe any new developments in the way of flying wedges and mass plays.

Princeton men present cheered lustily for Yale, for they are no friends of fair Harvard, while the friends of the Princeton representatives rooted for the crimson.

The colors of Amherst, Williams and Trinity were also seen scattered about among the blazing flags of crimson and blue, which were waving in the breeze.

Harvard had taken possession of the south end near the gate, and Yale the north end, where the cheering was most vociferous, and they kept the crowd lively by continually cheering every now and then.

The popular song was "Harvard, Harvard, one more game for Harvard," which was sung in a loud, hoarse, and hoarse voice.

HANDSOME DAN'S EFFORTS.
To vary matters some one sent off a bunch of about twenty-five red balloons, with a blue one dangling from a string.

As the novel-looking aloofness went sailing down through the center of the field, the Harvard hooters set up a shout that was deafening.

They evidently regarded it as a good omen for the efficacy of Yale's famous mascot, "Handsome Dan," to float away and vanish in this manner.

GOV. RUSSELL ARRIVES.
About 1:30 o'clock Gov. William E. Russell and several members of his staff appeared on the field and were escorted to the front seats reserved for them on the Harvard side. The Governor cheered vociferously.

NEW YALE SONGS.
Yale has always been famous for its musical talent, and the new songs, some of which were sung by the students, were in great vogue.

The new song, "Marching through Georgia," was the feature of the day, and as every one knew the melody the refrain it swelled out in a grand chorus all the way down the field.

Harvard men's efforts in the musical line were rather spasmodic. They seemed to prefer shouting and cheering.

NOW IT'S GOV. MCKINLEY.
Now that a good chance to do this when Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, came in, the friends of the crimson were in better condition for a game. The ground is as level as a table and covered with short, thick turf, which greatly diminished the chances of accidents from hoofs.

The police force on hand was larger than ever before. There were one hundred from the Boston force here under an inspector, besides thirty-five of the Springfield police and more than half a hundred specials.

SPECIAL TRAINLOADS ARRIVE.
A number of the special trains from New York and Boston began arriving at the grounds about 1 o'clock. The benches on the Harvard side began to fill up first, for the friends of the crimson had reached town on earlier trains.

Among some of the more prominent Harvard men noticed were Evert J. Wendell, Lawrence Goodrich, Henry S. Van Duzer, Jack Highlands, R. F. Thayer, John Cranston, S. V. Crosby, "Stump" Willard, R. M. Appleton, J. S. Clark, M. S. Donahue, George Stewart, "Albie" Porter, Harry Keays, Everett Lake, Billy Brooks, Perry and Bernard Bradford, Edward King, George Hadden, Charles C. Beaumont, James C. Carter, Frank Beaumont, John Lee, F. J. Weld, George H. Adams, Joseph Sears and James E. Carpenter.

They came straggling in at intervals, and whenever a well-known face appeared the crowd on the crimson benches at the familiar Harvard yell of "rah! Rah! Rah!" and cordially welcomed the newcomers.

concealed were brought out at the instant. The benches then seemed to be one solid mass of crimson.

They didn't seem to have so many flags, as the Yale side, but the cheering was as loud and as every one knew the melody the refrain it swelled out in a grand chorus all the way down the field.

Harvard men's efforts in the musical line were rather spasmodic. They seemed to prefer shouting and cheering.

NOW IT'S GOV. MCKINLEY.
Now that a good chance to do this when Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, came in, the friends of the crimson were in better condition for a game. The ground is as level as a table and covered with short, thick turf, which greatly diminished the chances of accidents from hoofs.

The police force on hand was larger than ever before. There were one hundred from the Boston force here under an inspector, besides thirty-five of the Springfield police and more than half a hundred specials.

SPECIAL TRAINLOADS ARRIVE.
A number of the special trains from New York and Boston began arriving at the grounds about 1 o'clock. The benches on the Harvard side began to fill up first, for the friends of the crimson had reached town on earlier trains.

Among some of the more prominent Harvard men noticed were Evert J. Wendell, Lawrence Goodrich, Henry S. Van Duzer, Jack Highlands, R. F. Thayer, John Cranston, S. V. Crosby, "Stump" Willard, R. M. Appleton, J. S. Clark, M. S. Donahue, George Stewart, "Albie" Porter, Harry Keays, Everett Lake, Billy Brooks, Perry and Bernard Bradford, Edward King, George Hadden, Charles C. Beaumont, James C. Carter, Frank Beaumont, John Lee, F. J. Weld, George H. Adams, Joseph Sears and James E. Carpenter.

They came straggling in at intervals, and whenever a well-known face appeared the crowd on the crimson benches at the familiar Harvard yell of "rah! Rah! Rah!" and cordially welcomed the newcomers.

The Yale side of the field was also well filled an hour before the game began.

SOME NEW YORKERS PRESENT.
Capt. Harry Duval, ex-Chancellor of the private secretary, was one of the first to arrive with a party of friends, who had come up from New York in the special car. A delegation of the strong from the New York Athletic Club were the Yale colors, and were headed by ex-Capt. Giannini, Bartow S. Weeks and Capt. Charles Sherrill, the ex-Yale sprinter. Among the football celebrities were Laurie Elton, Vance McCormick, "Mac" Cullen, Charlie Gill, ex-Capt. Eugene Richards, Willie Terry, H. H. Knapp, C. B. Storrs and Harry Beecher. The solid men of Yale from Gotham mainly were represented by ex-Yale players, such as Henry E. Howland, George Adse, whose son plays quarterback for Yale today; S. R. Betts, Thomas Thatcher, E. A. Peabody, F. S. Winston, Buchanan Winthrop, Allan W. Everts, Gen. Henry E. Stoughton, Nathan Flatner of Brooklyn, John W. Curtis, John J. Phelps and a host of others no less prominent.

Among the representatives of the colleges it was noticed almost at the Princeton team was on hand, Trenchard Taylor, Wheeler and Moore being especially conspicuous. They were there to see that no new dodge of Yale's which might work against them in the Yankee giving Day game should escape their notice.

"PENNY" WAS ALSO ON HAND with Mackay, Knipe, Vail and others to keep tabs on Harvard's play, and to observe any new developments in the way of flying wedges and mass plays.

Princeton men present cheered lustily for Yale, for they are no friends of fair Harvard, while the friends of the Princeton representatives rooted for the crimson.

The colors of Amherst, Williams and Trinity were also seen scattered about among the blazing flags of crimson and blue, which were waving in the breeze.

Harvard had taken possession of the south end near the gate, and Yale the north end, where the cheering was most vociferous, and they kept the crowd lively by continually cheering every now and then.

The popular song was "Harvard, Harvard, one more game for Harvard," which was sung in a loud, hoarse, and hoarse voice.

HANDSOME DAN'S EFFORTS.
To vary matters some one sent off a bunch of about twenty-five red balloons, with a blue one dangling from a string.

As the novel-looking aloofness went sailing down through the center of the field, the Harvard hooters set up a shout that was deafening.

They evidently regarded it as a good omen for the efficacy of Yale's famous mascot, "Handsome Dan," to float away and vanish in this manner.

GOV. RUSSELL ARRIVES.
About 1:30 o'clock Gov. William E. Russell and several members of his staff appeared on the field and were escorted to the front seats reserved for them on the Harvard side. The Governor cheered vociferously.

NEW YALE SONGS.
Yale has always been famous for its musical talent, and the new songs, some of which were sung by the students, were in great vogue.

The new song, "Marching through Georgia," was the feature of the day, and as every one knew the melody the refrain it swelled out in a grand chorus all the way down the field.

Harvard men's efforts in the musical line were rather spasmodic. They seemed to prefer shouting and cheering.

NOW IT'S GOV. MCKINLEY.
Now that a good chance to do this when Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, came in, the friends of the crimson were in better condition for a game. The ground is as level as a table and covered with short, thick turf, which greatly diminished the chances of accidents from hoofs.

The police force on hand was larger than ever before. There were one hundred from the Boston force here under an inspector, besides thirty-five of the Springfield police and more than half a hundred specials.

THE GAME.
HAMPDEN PARK, SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 25.—As the word to play is given in the eleventh annual football contest of the Yale and Yale Varsity elevens, Harvard starts with a running close wedge, and gains 20 yards to the right. On the next play, the crimson does not gain.

The tactics evidently take Yale by surprise, but they delight Harvard. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

They are slippery and make it hard for Yale to hold their advantage. Harvard begins a series of bucking plays and carries the ball two or three yards each time.

He punts after the third down to the end near the Harvard.

Brewer catches and Dunlop tries to go through the center, but loses ground. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Watters gets the ball on the pass back, but Hinkley runs around and blocks him before he can reach Yale's line at the center and gains three yards more.

YALE NOT QUITE IN IT YET.
It looks bad for Yale, and the new style of play shown by Harvard is evidently demoralizing her.

The ball is on Yale's 10-yard line, and Harvard tries to get around the end, but fails, being tackled by Greenwood. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

Harvard's play is very effective. Three men are sent in every time the ball is sent in. Harvard tries to get round Yale's end, but is felled, with a small gain.

YALE'S UNEXPECTED DEFENSE.
Although Yale during the first part has played for the most part on the defense, she has developed unexpected strength in this sort of play where she was supposed to be weak.

After the first few attacks by Yale with the new flying interference trick, which shows the ability to break it up, and Harvard's great gains have been made by mass play.

Harvard tries twice around the end, but fails. Harvard then makes a running wedge on Yale's left tackle.

LEHIGH IS IN THE LEAD.
Northerners Have Their Own Way in the First Half.

Two Players Injured Early in the Game.

MANHATTAN FIELD, Nov. 25.—It was North against South at the Manhattan Field this afternoon when the football teams of Lehigh University and University of North Carolina lined up for battle. It was the first time that the Southerners have appeared in this city, and three years since Lehigh last appeared and beat Columbia.

The teams looked to be about evenly matched as to weight, and each put up the best game they knew how.

The Carolinians showed up surprisingly well after their long trip. It was a perfect day for the sport and the field was in excellent condition. A very large crowd turned out to see the little-known college struggle for supremacy.

A large delegation from Bethlehem and members of the Lehigh Club, of this city, occupied one of the stands, freely cheering for the Southerners. There was also a good delegation of Southerners present to cheer their favorites.

The teams lined up as follows:
Lehigh..... 6
University of North Carolina..... 0

CAPT. RANKIN'S LEG BROKEN.
Injured in the Football Game at Eastern Park.

EASTERN PARK, BROOKLYN, Nov. 25.—The football teams of the Columbia and the Lehigh football teams lined up at this park at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. About one hundred persons were present.

The Columbian opened the game with the ball on the first line-up after the kick-off. McNally was injured about the leg, and had to leave the field. Shewen took the place of McNally.

In a heated scrimmage the cry was raised by the players that some one is hurt. The spectators rushed toward the field.

An ambulance was telegraphed for and arrived in about fifteen minutes. It was found that Capt. Frank Rankin, of the Lehigh team, had sustained a fracture of the right leg. His shinbone was broken just below the knee.

Young Rankin is about twenty years old. He is the son of Ex-County Clerk Rankin, of Brooklyn. He resides at 188 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

Rankin was taken home in charge of Ambulance No. 10. He is expected to be out in a few days.

The balance of the half was uneventful. Total score first half: Columbia, 0; Lehigh, 0.

ACCUSED OF BRIBING A VOTER.
Albany Police Commissioner Arrested—Three Others Made Prisoners.

ALBANY, Nov. 25.—Four men were arrested in this city to-day for alleged violation of the Election laws. One was Police Commissioner McGraw, charged with bribing a voter.

The other three were charged with aiding and abetting McGraw. They were all taken to the Albany House of Detention.

The balance of the half was uneventful. Total score first half: Columbia, 0; Lehigh, 0.

DOCTORS KICK THE BALL.
Interesting Game at Polo Grounds This Afternoon.

POLO GROUNDS, Nov. 25.—There was a lot of fun, if not a very big game, in the football game between the eleven of the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, at Polo Grounds.

The score at the end of first half was: Columbia School of Physicians and Surgeons, 6; Bellevue, 0.

TWILIGHT CLUB AMBITIOUS.
It Wants to Purchase the Manhattan Athletic Club's House.

A syndicate of members of the Twilight Club is anxious to purchase the handsome structure of the defunct Manhattan Athletic Club, on Madison avenue and Forty-fifth street, and make it the permanent home of the club.

Mr. Iselin, the owner, has given them an option on the property and will sell for $300,000.

The syndicate stands ready to purchase the building, and is only waiting for the formal consent of the club. The syndicate will meet and discuss the subject next week.

BATES WOULD PROVE AN ALIBI.
His Invalid Sister's Testimony Taken To-Day.

The lawyers in the Bates-McCarthy case to-day visited the apartments of Mr. Bates' invalid sister in the Dakota and took her testimony. Mrs. Bates has testified that she spent the night of the 15th at her sister's home, and that she saw her brother on the 16th at home in the Dakota that night.

RESTRAINT BEATS CHARGE.
At 15 to 1 He Takes the Feature Race at Bennings To-Day.

Two Players Injured Early in the Game.

RACE TRACK, BENNING, Nov. 25.—The third day of the Washington Jockey Club's Fall meeting attracted the largest crowd that has attended the races thus far.

The weather had moderated somewhat, and to-day was mild and clear. The track had not entirely dried out, yet it was in very fair condition.

The card, while not up to the meeting's standard, was a good one, and good contests were witnessed.

FIRST RACE.
Handicap; three-quarters of a mile. Betting: Place, 10 to 1; Show, 10 to 1; Win, 10 to 1.